CANDIDATES MUST M. A. FRANKLIN MAKE SECOND RUN FOR HOUSE URGED CLEMONS BE NOT REMOVED

Supreme Court Rules Primary Results Did Not Secure the Election of Contestants

Clarence H. Cooke, D. P. R. Isenberg, W. T. Rawlins and Norman Watkins were not elected to the house of representatives in the recent primary. Such is the opinion of the territorial supreme court which this morning handed down its decision on the questions reserved to it by Circuit Judge Robinson in the test suit brought against Territorial Secretary W. W. Thayer and City and County Clerk David Kalauokalani, Sr., by Cooke.

The supreme court answers only one of the questions reserved to it, saying: "The answer to one of the questions being decisive, we deem it inadvisable to pass upon the others, though urged by counsel to decide them. We believe no useful purpose would be served by discussing questions which are not necessary to the determination of the case in hand, and the solution of which seems not to be needed to assist the executive officers in discharging their duties under the law."

The opinion, including a brief review of the salient points, covers four and one-half pages. In conclusion the supreme court says: "We hold that the proviso contained in section 16 of the primary law cannot legally apply to candidates for membership in the legislature. Our answer to the first question reserved is in the negative."

This first question, as quoted in the opinion, was as follows: "Do the provisions of section 16 of

A strong personal indorsement for Federal Judge Charles F. Clemons, made by Collector of Customs Malcolm A. Franklin to the new attorney-general, Thomas Watt Gregory, was followed by the decision from Mr. Gregory to recall the demand for Judge Clemons' resignation.

Previous to this Attorney A. S. Humphreys of Honolulu was emphatically favored by the administration for federal judge and but for Judge Humphreys' own refusal to be considered, would have been appointed.

"I am a Democrat—a Bourbon Democrat—but I supported Judge Clemons as strongly as I was able, for he is an able lawyer and a splendid gentleman and I knew that the bar of Hawaii and the business interests here were with

JOSEPH P. COOKE LOOKS FOR SUGAR TO ADVANCE MORE BOMB EXPLODED IN CATHEDRAL; ONE IS INJURED

Joseph P. Cooke, president and manager of Alexander & Baldwin, Ltd., returned in the Matsonia from a trip on the mainland extending to the East, where Mrs. Cooke and he went to place their eldest boy and girl in school. He brings home a firm conviction that the price of sugar will again advance within a short time.

"I spent ten days with my family in British Columbia on the way east," Mr. Cooke said to the Star-Bulletin this afternoon, "also 12 days in New York and six days in San Francisco."

"In New York there was a very strong feeling on the sugar market. Sugar brokers were strongly of the opinion that the sudden drop in price that had occurred was purely temporary, and that the price would advance later in the year. In fact all of the people in the sugar trade had the same opinion. If you had told me when I arrived that the price had gone up a cent instead of down half a cent, I would not have been surprised."

"I still believe that the price will advance at the end of the year, or say December or January, because of the large purchases of the next Cuba crop by English firms for delivery about January or February."

TRIAL DATE FOR MANY CASES TO BE SET OCT. 26 SUPERVISORS NOW FAVORABLE TO FRONTAGE TAX

Federal Grand Jury Chosen and C. G. Bockus is Named as Foreman of Body

With the administering of the oath to 20 persons, the majority of whom are from Honolulu, and the appointment of C. G. Bockus as foreman, the federal grand jury for the October term was completed before Judge Sanford B. Dole this morning. The eight additional jurors secured by Marshal J. J. Smiddy yesterday afternoon to complete the panel were present. Following the examination of the additional jurors by Special Assistant M. A. Thomas, and the reading of the court's charge, the jury retired behind closed doors to attack the large volume of business which has accumulated since the last grand jury was discharged.

More than 30 persons have been called as witnesses before the grand jury, a large number of these being present this morning. It is believed that the majority of cases which the grand jury will investigate during the session which commenced this morning will deal largely with opium smuggling and transportation and the illicit selling of liquor.

The grand jury is composed of C. G. Bockus, foreman; William Miner, Makawao, Maui; John F. Colburn, Honolulu; Jas. Williams, Kohala, Hawaii; Clinton W. Crandall, Honolulu; James C. Crane, Honolulu; Harry Armitage, Honolulu; Antonio Amaral, Pahoa, Hawaii; B. Dole, Honolulu; A. F. Robinson, Waimea, Kauai; Axel A. Aalberg, Honolulu; Herman Meek, Max W. Bergau, John A. Noble, Albert Blom, Otto Heine, Edward Scott, James P. Pierce and Robert Williamson of Honolulu.

The calendar for the October term of the federal court has been arranged and was completed in open court this morning. The complete calendar to date follows:

Fred Williams, two cases in which defendant was never arrested. Cases removed from calendar until defendant is found.

Joseph Barker, opium case. To be

FENWAY PARK, BOSTON, Mass., Oct. 13.—Outgaming and outplaying the vaunted world's champions of 1913 in every department of the game, a new team of champions achieved the final run of baseball fame today.

Maintaining their marvelous batting and fielding form shown in taking three straight games from the Philadelphia Athletics, the Boston Braves annexed the fourth game at Fenway park this afternoon and with it not only the world's championship but a new record in baseball.

Never before has a world's series been decided in four straight games. And perhaps never has a team so decidedly outplayed its rival for the premier diamond honors as Boston has outplayed Philadelphia. Despite the closeness of most of the contests from the first to the last inning, Boston has always had the "edge" on the more experienced Athletics. Twice the Athletics have seemed to take a lead that assured them the game and twice have the Braves by unexpected daring, sheer skill and a nerve that never failed come from behind and wrested victory from Connie Mack's wonderful aggregation.

CLEAN BATTING DOES IT.
Clean batting, coupled with a base on balls, scored today's triumph for Boston. Young Shawkey, who has been hurling fine ball for the Athletics most of the 1914 season, could not shut out the safe hits today. On the other hand, Dick Rudolph was virtually as effective as when he won the opening game last Friday. He kept the hits scattered except in the fifth inning, when a single, an infield out and a double tallied a lonely run for the Braves.

Both teams failed in perfect form today, not an error being made. Philadelphia shone in the fielding but at bat could do little with Rudolph's peculiar "floaters."

After the fifth inning, when Boston clinched the game with two runs, Pennock replaced Shawkey in the box. He pitched good ball but it was too late. The defeats of Plank and Bender, the veterans, made Connie Mack fall back on his youngsters for the last two games, but in the face of the remarkable twirling done by Stallings' men, the Athletics never got the runs necessary to supplement fine pitching. RUDOLPH PULLS OUT OF HOLE.

Rudolph pulled himself out of a dangerous hole in a late inning when Frank Baker on third and two men out, Jimmy Walsh came to bat. Using all his cunning, Rudolph struck out the reliable outfielder and Philadelphia had lost a chance to make a run or two. Johnny Evers and Walter Maranville played a slashing game around second for the Braves and Evers shone at the bat. Maranville did little at bat
